Hev. Allen Jay, of Indiana, a noted preacher, and whose work in roising endowments had also made him celebrated, and President Hobbs, were the heroes of the occasion. Some time ago Mr. Jay took up the work of raising an endowment for the college, and incidentally devoted himself to obtaining pledges to pay off the debt. At the meeting to-day his most eloquent remarks were made in the simple announcement that every dollar necessary had been subscribed, and the debt was a thing of the past. There was a bountful spread at dinner, and many congratulatory remarks were made by the dignitaries assembled. It was a red-letter day for the college and students, faculty, officers and visitors vied with each other in making it an occasion for genuine rejoicing and enfoyment.

Special Policeman White at the Southern passenger station had a trick played on him last night by a smart darky. There was a well dressed negro man dancing on the platform, and in his syrations a pisiol so plainly protruded from his hip pocket the officer arrested him for carrying concealed weapons. The negro was horror struck at his predicament, but behaved nice and "nigger like." Upon the urgent request of the negro, the officer agreed that if he put up a twenty-five dollar bond for his appearance before the Mayor to-day, he could, go on his way rejoicing. "Here boss,' said the payor is the Mayor to-day, he could go on his way rejoicing. "Here boss," said the negro is three ten dollar bills, give me back five dollars." The negro pulled three bills out of his vest pocket. In the semi-darkness, the officer failed to make careful note of the money, and handed the New York darky a fiver, just as he mounted the steps to take the passing north-bound. The officer never paid particular altender to the money until he went went to turn steps to take the passing north-bound. The officer never paid particular attention to the money until he went to turn it into the chief of police this morning, when he found three nice one dollar bills instead of three tens. The question that bothers the policeman now is whether he is out five dollars and the city twenty-two dollars, or whether he is out two dollars and the city in three?

In his charge to the grand jury, Judge Boyd took occasion to allude to reports which had been circulated to the effect that Republican lawyers practicing before the court stood in better favor than Democratic. He was severe in his characterization of the slander, declaring that every attorney who practiced before him would stamp the rumor as the basest of shyster-lawyer slanders. He also said that there was not a shadow of excus, for the charge that the juries were partisan, alluding to the fact that if anything, the jury rolls ever since he had been on the bench would show that as many Democratis as Republicans, and often more, had been drawn, and that the jury drawings, so far as he had observed, were absolutely without regard to served, were absolutely without regard to the politics of the persons selected.
